Foreword

The unprecedented success of the MUSICAL COURIER'S first Directory of the Musical Arts and Artists (1957) has encouraged us to make the Directory an annual issue. Considerable thought and effort has been expended to refine and to improve the 1958 edition.

As a new service to artists, management, and educators, we add this year a comprehensive listing of American colleges and universities, each of which sponsors a concert series. When the information has been available, we have listed the chairman of the concert committee, and also the chairman of the department of music in each instance. We are certain that this listing, if properly utilized can be extremely valuable to all concerned.

Our readership will also find our international listing section greatly expanded in all areas—foreign orchestras, opera companies, and managements. Through the cooperation of our world-wide correspondents, foreign embassies, and the cultural officers of the United States Information Service, we have compiled what we believe to be the most comprehensive listing of its kind. Unfortunately, information from Brazil and Czechoslovakia arrived too late to be included.

The MUSICAL COURIER proudly presents its second edition of the Directory Issue of the Musical Arts and Artists. We will continue each year to expand and improve this project, and we foresee the time when the Directory will be a veritable "Who's-Who" of the musical arts.

LUTTON MUSIC PERSONNEL SERVICE

Each season we have requests from major music schools of the U.S. for currently active artist teacher-performers who wish to join their staffs. While the majority prefer music degree personnel . . . successful professional artists to teach Voice—Opera Workshop—Piano—Orchestral instruments (major symphony background preferred) are also in limited demand.

We invite you to write us regarding our services.

Bulletin on Request

No Regimentation

EDWIN HUGHES

117 East 79th Street
New York 21, N. Y.

Born in Washington, D. C. Studied with Rafael Joseffy, Theodor Leschetizky (Assistant to the latter). European debut, Vienna: New York debut, Carnegie Hall. Editor-in-chief piano music for G. Schirmer, New York, 1920-26; President of Music Teachers National Association, 1938-39; President of National Music Council, 1940-44 (now Exec. Sec.). President of "Bohemians" (N. Y. Musicians Club). For details, see "Who's Who."

Mr. Hughes says:

"The student who has been entered in National Guild auditions for a number of years and has earned the Guild High School Diploma comes well equipped for advanced study. There is no regimentation in the Guild—the teachers choose the material their students present from the entire gamut of piano literature, classified about equally as 'early and late classic, romantic and modern,' according to the Guild Syllabus. In the hands of a good teacher, the mastery of such a balanced repertoire makes a well-developed student."

Il Tesoro Illuminato dell'Arte del Canto

by

ALFREDO MARTINO

The program of study which I wish to present to you is not an invention or untried plan of my own, but rather is an effort to revive the system of teaching employed by famous old Italian masters.

There are many real reasons for a definite, though flexible, program or course of study. For instance, examine the catalogue of any well known conservatory of music. In it you will see that for the study of piano, violin, 'cello, etc., there is shown a definite and full course of study, with a list of works in which a pupil must prove himself proficient before completing the course. Now examine the course prescribed for the singers. Is it as definite, as clean cut, as thorough as that which is provided for the instrumentalists? Or is it rather vague, with many references to "Fundamentals and Breathing"? Perhaps this difference is one of the basic reasons for the presence on the modern musical scene of proportionately fewer fine singers than instrumentalists.

I do not wish to create the impression that I feel there are not many splendid singers today. I am thinking, rather, of the many singers, especially young singers, who never seem to reach a really artistic goal, despite hard, conscientious study and fine talent. I can see this talent striving to express itself by means of a voice whose training has been inadequate. Such training has lacked the long, steady development necessary to build a voice which is a real servant of the natural talent and intelligence of the singer.

The pianist knows that before he is able to play artistically, he must master certain work from the great technicians and composers. Why, then, should a singer consider himself an artist after he has devoted only a year or two to irregular study, a great deal of which time has been spent in learning songs for which he is not technically prepared, and of which he has no real interpretive comprehension?

I believe that a systematized course of study is of great value to the student, since it permits him to look ahead to the work which he is expected to do, thus building confidence in himself and in his ability to accomplish the task before him.

My course of study does away with the haphazard guesswork employed by many teachers. It provides for ample, individual work for every pupil, so that for each one a routine will be employed which will make his progress sure and steady. There will be no chance for the improper and dangerous use of songs and arias long before the pupil's voice is ready for them. There will be instead a gradual and regular development of those delicate muscles upon whose proper control the singer depends for a lovely, flowing singing voice. To make this work both interesting and progressive, I have carefully selected and arranged all the studies used in my course.

Many people will think that perhaps this program of study which I am outlining is a very long one. But if one considers the number of years spent by many pupils, possibly with several different teachers, (and with each change of teachers starting their vocal studies all over again), this course will not seem either long or tedious. It provides for real, logical development, not a repetition of the same work over and over again.

PROGRAM — GRADE I

A. Necessary Knowledge of the Production of the Voice
B. The Art of Regulating the Breath
C. Connection of Vowels
D. Formation of Vowels and Consonants
E. Diction
F. Rhythm
G. Flexibility of the Voice
H. Exercises to Correct the Error of Singing Flat
I. Exercises in Vocalization
J. Bel Canto Vocalises
K. Solfeggi, Selected from the Works of the Great Masters

This point, the end of Grade I, completes the course of study which I have planned for those pupils who do not care to study opera but who are interested in operetta, radio, television, and other semi-classical or popular singing.

This course will include, however, some arias from the works of operatic composers.

A radical and complete cure of the tremolo, a vocal defect heretofore proven insurmountable to many singers.

PROGRAM — GRADE II

The training and development of the voice, as outlined below, embraces every form of exercises and musical figures which the singer will ultimately be called upon to use.

A. Length, Intensity, Sonority, Color
B. Preparation for, and Completion of, the Technique of the Trill
C. Studies of Vocal Cadenzas
D. Solfeggi and Vocalises "Celebres," Including Works of Giulio Alvary, Marco Bordogni, Ferdinand Siber, Friedrich Wieck
E. Traditional and Modern Operatic and Concert Repertoire

Grade II deals mainly with those pupils who wish to devote themselves professionally to an operatic or concert career.

Helen Alexander

—Soprano

Mme. Alexander's program was filled with beautifully selected numbers of Italian, French, German, North American and Spanish origin, sung in their native tongue and a delight to hear. Mme. Alexander proved herself an artist of great ability and intelligence of portrayal and interpretation. La Prensa, Madrid, Spain, 5/9/57

Mme. Alexander shows that she has very carefully trained herself in the various schools of song and for this reviewer there was particular interest in the American songs she sang, such as "The Bird" by John Duke and "Love Went A'Riding" by Frank Bridge. Compositions by Americans in this field are rarely presented to the music public of Madrid and Mme. Alexander is to be thanked for her presentation.

Arriba, Madrid, Spain, 5/8/57

We would like particularly to praise the flowing legato of the Nachtigall of Brahms and the humor Mme. Alexander displayed in presenting to us the Lavandera of Federico Longas. Mme. Alexander was warmly received by the public.

A.B.C., Madrid, Spain, 5/8/57

Mme. Alexander displayed command of a wide range of styles and schools. A name we will remember—the American artist Helen Alexander.

O. Circulo, Lisbon, Portugal, 5/15/57

Mme. Alexander has a voice of sweetness and she showed us last evening that she is a fine interpreter with exquisite taste. North America should be proud of this Ambassadress who is giving all too small a tour in Spain.

El Noticiero, Barcelona, Spain, 5/2/57

She impressed us in the Schubert and Brahms selections and Mme. Alexander demonstrated throughout the range of her program that she has a cultivated voice which she has trained with great care in order to pass on to her listeners some beautiful pages of music from the past and present.

La Vanguardia, Barcelona, Spain, 5/2/57

With a clear true voice, the artist sang a program of diversity of languages . . . and with a number of authors, she displayed a great knowledge of style and type.

Musica, Alicante, Spain, 4/26/57

Unlike many other singers, Mme. Alexander gave forth a friendliness that established a feeling of intimacy and cordiality with her audiences.

Levante, Valencia, Spain, 4/28/57

MORE CONCERTS FOR MORE PEOPLE . . .

"As we all know, Virgil Fox is a man of superlative talents. We expect a concert artist to have the skill of mind and finger to accomplish his task superbly. Obviously Fox has also that rare talent many of his critics lack: being able to work hard, consistently, and with a purpose. He enjoys showing people what he has discovered in music. This is as it should be, for art may become stagnant when it is not communicated to others.

"That such abilities should draw the largest audience I have seen at a Detroit organ performance is indeed gratifying. This shows that audiences are not as stupid as many would console themselves into thinking.

"Mr. Fox is a man of courage. What he has to say in music is stated without apology, timidity, or straddling the fence. Few other concert organists have the vitality of imagination necessary for public performance. They send more people home in boredom than the profession can bear, and still keep its head up. Not so with Mr. Fox. His imagination is never turned off."

John Challis
From an article in The American Organist '57

Soloist with the Philadelphia Orchestra, Worcester Music Festival '57

". . . is there another organist who can carry an audience with him the way Mr. Fox does? There was keen appreciation for his skill, virtuosity, and imaginative registration . . ." Jules Wolffers, Musical Courier

VIRGIL FOX

"Miss Flissler is well on her way to becoming THE American woman pianist," a role that until now has been vacant in the international concert field. She returns next season, after a "sensational success" for her third European tour.

Eileen FLISSLER pianist

"During her entire recital, her magnificent technical equipment played a subordinate role and served a true mature expression—the Chopin Sonata with the funeral march had an unusual inner lustre and we must go far back in our memory to recall a performance of so pure, so intensely inspired and noble sound as this. Eileen Flissler knows how to make a piano sing, in her whispering pianissimo and in her radiant forte; she knows also how to build and balance a piece to make it an organic whole."

BACH ARIA GROUP

WILLIAM H. SCHEIDE, Director

"All the members of the Bach Aria Group performed with cultivated artistry and as master musicians. It was a program which showed the entire depth and breadth of baroque music—as well as Bach's inexhaustible creative inventiveness."

The New York Herald Tribune

"Despite the fact that I'm a Bach devotee I never cease to marvel at this set of listeners. They drink in every aria and chorus with the utmost quiet and then burst into the kind of prolonged, lusty applause that is usually reserved for jazz bands. And they fill the house."

The New York Post

"You could easily haunt Constitution Hall for a month and not hear so many good tunes. I refrain from mentioning a single singer or instrumental soloist of the Bach Aria Group by name for every one without exception was excellent, and to expatiate on the various beauties of the long string of artists is beyond the scope of a newspaper notice."

The Washington Evening Star

The Bach Aria Group, William H. Scheide, Director, is a unique organization which has achieved its reputation through concerts, recordings, radio broadcasts and films.

The Group was organized by Mr. Scheide in 1946 to perform the arias and duets from the cantatas of Johann Sebastian Bach, a repertoire comparatively unknown but remarkable for its vigor, its melodic qualities, its beauty, and infinite variety.

The Bach Aria Group, composed as it is, of world-famous instrumental and vocal soloists, has been uniquely able to set forth the central and crowning achievement of one of the greatest names in music. For, as Albert Schweitzer has written in his book on Bach, "In comparison with the cantatas, everything else that Bach has done appears as hardly more than a supplement."

"Aaron Copland, His Work and Contribution to American Music"

(The E. P. Dutton Company)

Miss Smith has just completed a South-Western recital-lecture tour devoted to "The Piano Music of Aaron Copland" which included performances at the three large universities of Puerto Rico. She will appear at the Corcoran Gallery of Art, Washington, D. C., on January 12.

N. Y. Herald Tribune: "Miss Smith knows the Copland scores to the marrow and treats them with affection. Her effort is a noble one. More power to her."

Dallas News: "As scholarly as her book and remarks from the recital platform the program was an important contribution to music study."

San Juan El Mundo: "Miss Smith was warmly applauded for her intelligent exposition of Copland's various style and for her expressive playing of his music—notably the Piano Sonata.

Boston Christian Science Monitor: "Miss Smith's book on Copland might well be called indispensable for any person interested in contemporary American music."

New York Times: "Miss Smith has done a good job of digging up the facts, and she has provided thorough analyses of Mr. Copland's various styles and of all his significant compositions. Mr. Copland deserves a book of this scope."

Principal baritone of the Berlin State Opera and the Hamburg Opera in Germany

LATE MARCH

Returning to the New York City Opera Company

This notable concert singer will be in the United States all summer and most of next season for engagements. Rudolph Elie, a foremost Boston critic, makes this glowing appraisal of his special art in the Boston Herald:

"Mr. Winters, a man with a marvelous stage presence, composed, poised and relaxed yet commanding, possesses a baritone of first quality in texture and one schooled to a degree of musical perfection.

"He is capable of as powerful a sound as any baritone of the day, but uses the power with discretion as in the dramatic climax in the aria from 'Andrea Chenier.' He phrases with a keen sense of musicality at all times, and provides, in short, an interpretative insight that gives everything he sings a sense of validity."

EUGENE LIST and the Knickerbocker Players

The Knickerbocker Players finished the first part of their national tour with an appearance in New York City on Sunday, November 17, 1957. Five countries and four centuries were represented in this program by the all-American group of distinguished artists. Below, the major newspaper in the country recounts their stunning success.

The New York Times

NOVEMBER 18, 1957.

Music: Eugene List Plays 4 Concertos

Pianist Performs With Knickerbocker Group

By ROSS PARMENTER

EUGENE LIST yesterday afternoon brought to New York the program that he and the Knickerbocker Players are performing on a fifty-date concert tour of the United States. They gave it at Carnegie Recital Hall... the concert was exhilarating.

It was partly because of the zip with which Mr. List played, and partly because of the music. Especially lively and interesting were the Shostakovich Piano Concerto of 1933 and the Tarantella for piano and strings that Hershy Kay has reconstructed from a work by Louis Moreau Gottschalk, America's first internationally famous piano virtuoso.

Mr. List introduced the Shostakovich work to America as a youth of 16 when he played it with the Philadelphia Orchestra in 1934. A year later he performed the New York première with the New York Philharmonic. He still plays it with enormous gusto and flashing technical glitter. And the work itself remains remarkably fresh. Despite early predictions that it was too "smart-alecky" to last, it still is cheeky and entertaining. The slow movement gives it an underlying depth that makes one respect the whole. It had a great success with yesterday's audience.

Eugene List

The concerto's accompaniment is unconventionally scored for trumpet and strings, and the need for a good trumpeter must have played a role in determining the rest of the touring party's program. At all events, the program also gave that trumpeter, Albert Ligatti, a chance to shine as a soloist, for it opened with a Torelli Concerto for Trumpet and Strings. And the trumpet was heard again to brilliant effect in Mr. Kay's orchestration of the Gottschalk Tarantella...

Ligatti, Trumpeter, Is Also on Program

. . . . . List's tone was a positive advantage in the Shostakovich and the Gottschalk, especially when utilized as it was with such superb rhythmic sense...

Yet Mr. List has the feelings of a romantic pianist ...and he played the andante movement of the Bach Concerto No. 1 in D minor with a keen sense of how it foreshadowed the romantic movement. In the seldom-played Liszt Concerto, "Malédiction," he also played with a romantic feeling for its theatrical surge and thunder. This was the work that most needed a larger hall; but so much physical vitality in so small a space contributed to the excitement of the afternoon... the Knickerbocker Players...seemed swept along, and they gave accompaniments that matched the exuberance of the pianist.

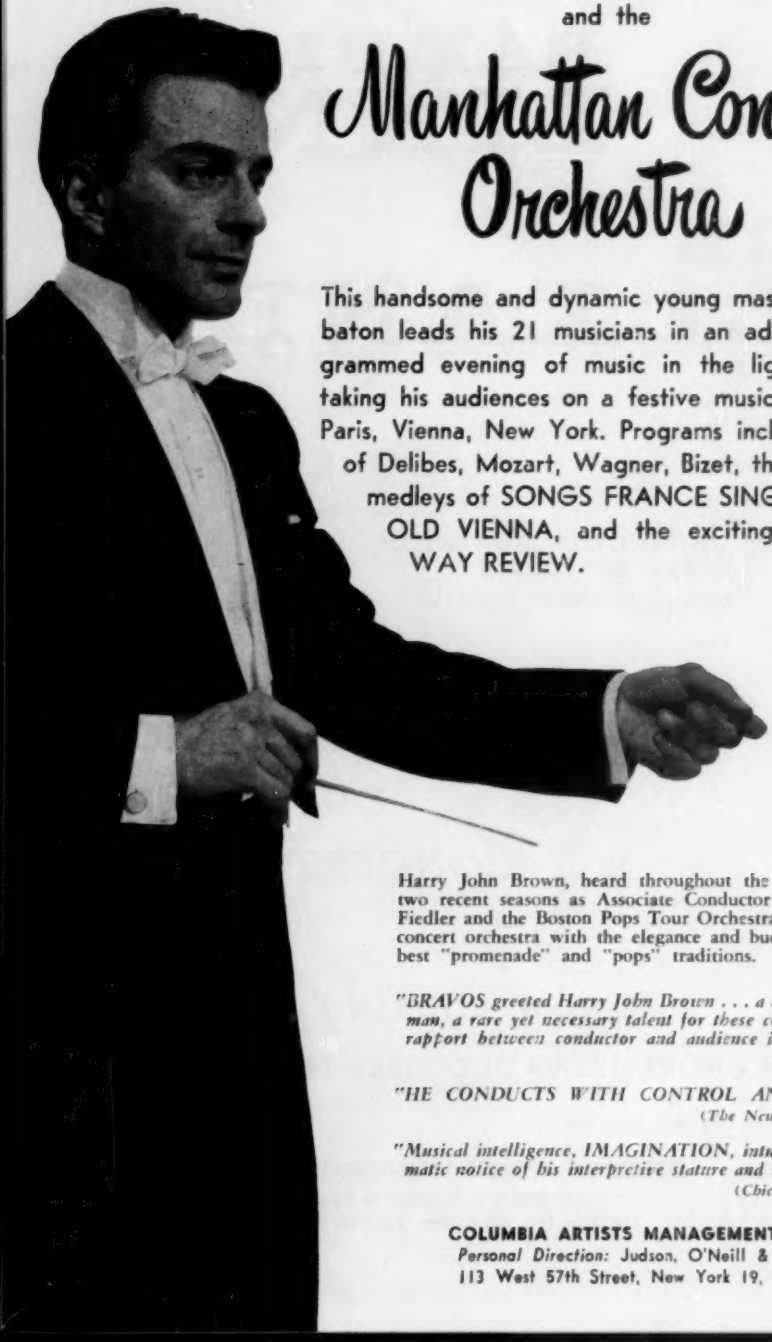
Manhattan Concert Orchestra



This handsome and dynamic young master of the baton leads his 21 musicians in an adroitly programmed evening of music in the lighter vein, taking his audiences on a festive musical tour of Paris, Vienna, New York. Programs include music of Delibes, Mozart, Wagner, Bizet, the polished medleys of SONGS FRANCE SINGS, FROM OLD VIENNA, and the exciting BROADWAY REVIEW.

Harry John Brown, heard throughout the U. S. during two recent seasons as Associate Conductor with Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Pops Tour Orchestra, inspires his concert orchestra with the elegance and buoyancy of the best "promenade" and "pops" traditions.

"BRAVOS greeted Harry John Brown . . . a tasteful showman, a rare yet necessary talent for these concerts where rapport between conductor and audience is important."

mezzo marked for greatness

Betty Allen

New York Times

October, 1957

This group of songs was the high point of the program because of the superb voice and artistry of the soloist, Betty Allen.

January, 1957

Her voice had a rich, true mezzo-soprano quality with a brilliant top and dark, reedy chest tones.

New York Herald Tribune

October, 1957

The warm, rich mezzo-soprano voice of Betty Allen was the evening's most memorable feature.

January 6, 1958

From the sound of things at Town Hall last night, one might justifiably have concluded that 1958 will be a happy year indeed for Betty Allen, her managers, and all those fortunate enough to hear her sing.

New York World-Telegram and Sun

January 6, 1958

Hers is a strong and earthy voice, deep, rich and vibrant; when Miss Allen let go, the upper tones were staggering in their impact. Yet she could phrase gently and whisper pianissimi in a fragile hush.

Buffalo Evening News

November, 1957

Betty Allen is a natural recitalist. Character portrayal, tonal shading for each changing mood and a deep language sense elevate the primary gift of voice.

The Calgary Albertan

October, 1957

In Betty Allen the voice is big, in resonance, in range, in timbre and color; and she uses it with controlled elegance.

Edmonton

October, 1957

Combining a flair for the dramatic with sincerity and vocal dexterity, Betty Allen gripped the audience in a program ranging from Handel to modern American spirituals.

FRANCE SINGS ITS STORY

In their concert program these joyous Troubadours tell the story of French song through time. Beginning with the close of the Dark Ages, when wandering minstrels sang of wars, heroes and the Crusades, they take us on a musical journey through the gay, witty and artificial court life of the Louis' and on to the romance and drama of the 19th Century. Finally, in our own time, through their own songs, Varel and Bailly give us today's France with its cafes and bistros, its satire and comedy, its love of life—and its irresistible charm.

"Rare even in this city schooled to perfection."

The Sudler-Powers-Shelters TRIO

The Sudler-Powers-Shelters Trio, consisting of baritone, cellist, and pianist, was formed to present the tonal affinity of this melodious combination in repertoire particularly suited to this ensemble.

The three artists, who are also pursuing brilliant individual careers, have combined their talents through a feeling of mutual compatibility to produce a concert of unusual interest and rare beauty.

Their programs contain concert selections for baritone and piano, and cello and piano, as well as works for trio, thus providing an entertaining diversity of musical literature. The Trio was first introduced on the History and Enjoyment of Music Series at Orchestra Hall in Chicago in 1953.

ZABALETA

"... steals the thunder ..."

THE BOSTON HERALD, MONDAY, DEC. 16, 1957

MUSIC

By RUDOLPH ELIE

It is not often anyone steals the thunder from the Zimbler Sinfonietta but yesterday afternoon a tall, handsome, and very distinguished man did exactly that.

He was Nicanor Zabaleta, a Spanish harp virtuoso who made a guest appearance with the Sinfonietta in its first concert in Boston since completing its sensational South American tour. He is to the harp what Segovia is to the guitar, which is to say a musician of phenomenal technical attainment but one with an equally phenomenal esthetic attainment as well: no harpist in my experience ever displayed such an innately musical sensibility, or such a highly developed ear for the most delicatenuances of style, such a feeling for tonal timbres, rhythms, accents, and all the thousand other things that reveal the musician liberated from the problems of his technique.

To be sure, the appearance of the solo harp virtuoso is a rarity; the means of comparison are thus pretty limited. Still and all, I am confident that Sr. Zabaleta is without peer in the field today: to listen to—and to watch him was one of the high points of the season so far.

The first number in which he appeared was a pretty obvious trifle by Jean-Michele Damase, a 29 year old French composer, that, save for a few modulatory twists, had little musical interest. When the harpist appeared as soloist in work by C.P.E. Bach and Beethoven, however (whether they were originally scored for harp by these composers, as the program suggests, is something that will have to pass unchallenged at the moment), the results were miraculous. And particularly so, from a technical point of view, in an Introduction and Rondo by an almost exact contemporary of Chopin who wrote as if under the direct influence of that master. Sr. Zabaleta was given an ovation, and responded with an encore. It might be added, for the record, that he broke a string during the concertino but continued on without notice.

THE TIMES
LONDON MONDAY FEBRUARY 25 1957

FESTIVAL HALL CONCERTS

MISS SOREL'S DÉBUT WITH ORCHESTRA

Saturday night's concert in the Festival Hall, given by the London Philharmonic Orchestra under Mr. George Weldon, was considerably enlivened by the presence of a young French pianist, Miss Claudette Sorel (whose training has been done in the United States) as soloist in Beethoven's C major piano concerto and Dohnanyi's Variations on a Nursery Tune.

Though Miss Sorel had previously played at Wigmore Hall, this was her first appearance with an orchestra in this country. It will certainly not be her last, for one of the most excellent features of her performance of Dohnanyi's Variations was her sense of give and take; while she was always ready to enjoy the limelight when it was her due, she was equally ready to fill the role of accompanist when it was required of her, and constantly on the alert to match her tone colour, her dynamics, and her rubato to the overall pattern. With her rhythmic alacrity, her sparkling fingerwork, and her lively musical imagination she caught just the right note of kittenish gaiety in the work, and she was fortunate in enjoying first-rate cooperation from Mr. George Weldon and the London Philharmonic Orchestra. Beethoven's sparkling C major piano concerto earlier in the programme was also much to Miss Sorel's liking.

Having applauded her so warmly in this lightweight music, we now look forward to appraising her deeper musicianship in more substantial undertakings. The orchestra completed this pleasant, Saturday-night entertainment with Beethoven's overture to "Egmont," Wagner's overture to Tannhäuser, and a selection from Tchaikovsky's Swan Lake.

BEATRICE KREBS, newly returned from a year of work in Germany, has added to her American acclaim the praise of one of Germany's most important critics, Munich's K. H. Ruppel, who wrote of her first performance with the Münchner Bach Chor:

> "The American Contralto Beatrice Krebs, with the control and excellent German diction of her remarkably beautiful, velvety dark voice, proved herself more than adequate to cope with the outstanding demands on the singer's musical intelligence. If she intends to stay in Germany, she would be a discovery worthy of the attention of opera directors and managers of high ranking concerts."

On every hand, American critics agree.

Of her Town Hall debut:

> "...a generous range of vocal hue and timbre, including brightness and warmth...." — Francis Perkins, New York Herald Tribune.

Of The Messiah:

> "Her pronunciation confounds those who say the English language is not beautiful. Religious meaning fairly lives in every tone of her full but thoughtfully shaded voice." — John Kyes, Worcester Evening Gazette.

Of her performance in Mahler's 3rd Symphony under Dimitri Mitropoulos:

> "...Miss Beatrice Krebs sang with superbly glowing colors...." — Jay S. Harrison, New York Herald Tribune.

BEATRICE KREBS,

MEZZO-CONTRALTO

SOPRANO

RECITAL

"An artist of distinction. Miss Addison's soprano has delicacy of texture and glowing warmth. She is a singer of refinement and sensibility."

—HOWARD TAUBMAN, New York Times

"Adele Addison is disarmingly young, petite and pretty, but her singing has the glow of the inspired prophet."

—HARRIETT JOHNSON, New York Post

"Captivated her audience through her artistry."

—MILES KASTENDIECK, New York Journal-American

CONCERT

"Miss Addison is that rarest of singers—one with a voice and brains to boot. She was as stylistically sure in the Bach cantata as she was in the modern works."

—HAROLD C. SCHONBERG, New York Times

"Provided a musical experience which surpassed anything this reviewer has heard in recent months."

—LESTER TRIMBLE, New York Herald Tribune

OPERA

"Adele Addison (as Liu in 'Turandot') simply charmed the audience with her delicate and utterly musical inflections, but when volume was needed she poured it out in soaring cantilena. She is a good actress, too."

—PAUL HENRY LANG, New York Herald Tribune

"Adele Addison sang Liu with distinction. She is musical and she has feeling. She has learned to use her silken lyric voice so that it has become an instrument for what she has to communicate."

—HOWARD TAUBMAN, New York Times

"A first-class recitalist."—Journal American

"Destined to join the ranks of the great recitalists. He has truly one of the most naturally beautiful vocal instruments I have yet heard."
—Tucker Keiser, Boston Post

"A well-schooled voice, evident musical intelligence, an impressive appearance. He is tall and striking, with good carriage. His voice is large and sonorous . . . his singing virile and individual."
—John William Riley, Boston Globe

"He showed himself to be a man of singular musical intelligence with an instrument of wide ranging character."
—Rudolph Elie, Boston Herald

"Mr. Boatwright's resonant baritone was heard in Schubert's 'Der Doppelgaenger'. It was beautifully sung, diction admirable."

soprano

"A sensation! Blessed with a voice for grand opera, Miss Bishop has everything, including fine and sensitive acting ability, radiance, vivacious charm and grace."

—Los Angeles Times

"The voice is fresh, agile and beautiful in quality and she always sang expressively."

—New York Times

("Don Pasquale" at Central City) "Adelaide Bishop, as the lovely Norina, gave a scintillating performance and sang gloriously."

—Denver Post

(Hugo Weisgall's "The Stronger") "Not only did Miss Bishop act resourcefully and convincingly, but she sang the long, difficult, vocally ungratifying part with exceptional skill."

A World of Dancing

"MOST VARIED PROGRAM ON THE CONCERT STAGE"

. . . A sheer delight of sight and sound—such has been the unanimous verdict about this unique program with its brilliant array of breath-taking costumes, and its variety of colorful dances chosen from the various provinces of Spain, and from dances native to Scotland, India, Ceylon, Italy, Bavaria, Portugal, Cuba, Java, Japan, Polynesia and other countries.

THE CRITICS SAY . . .

". . . treasures of ethnic dance assembled by the beautiful Carola Goya and the virile Matteo (what a perfect team they are)—vivid and neat patterns, sensitivity to music and dramatic theme, a wonderful elegance—a stirring and wholly entertaining program of colorful and absorbing dances."

Walter Terry, New York Herald Tribune

"In the completely filled large Ziegfeld Theatre on a bitter cold night, Carola Goya and Matteo were in solid command of a performance of great charm. This is a very sellable dance program that will surely please all who fancy an evening of genuinely artistic diversion."

Variety, New York

"There was a craftsmanship and smoothness of presentation that left little room for comment."

John Martin, New York Times

"Not only did the boys sing with exceptional accuracy of intonation but they also sang beautifully and expressively, even in German, a language few of them could have known personally. Many boys' choirs can sing with sweet effect when they sing softly, but the striking thing about this group is that it maintains its purity and sweetness of tone even when the boys are singing loudly. In the Gabrieli "Exaudi Deus," for instance, they were singing almost at the top of their lungs, yet the effect was ravishing." —The New York Times

"The Ninos Cantores delighted a big turnout with a gloriously sung program of choral works ranging from Palestrina to Mexican folk songs . . . the performance was distinguished for the excellence of its tonal quality and the impressiveness of their delivery."
—Daily News, Miami, Florida

"The results are a joy to hear . . . notable for its musical distinction and its commendable variety . . . sang impeccably. . . . This was, in short, an evening of extraordinarily beautiful music-making."
—Standard-Times, New Bedford, Mass.

"This was the fullest house we have ever had, even in the years when we have had larger memberships. It seems the idea of this type of concert itself was breathtaking. Never have we had an attraction that satisfied so many."

MUSICAL DIRECTOR AND CONDUCTOR

AMERICAN SYMPHONY OF NEW YORK
at Hunter College & Brooklyn Museum (8th Season)

LONG ISLAND OPERA COMPANY
at Brooklyn Academy of Music

"For our money the bright star of the evening was Enrico Leide, conducting."
—Musical Courier, Aida, Brooklyn Academy of Music, September 28, 1957

"A new star is rising . . . . . .

GUY RICHARD GORDON

is his name. He is 24 now—tall, handsome, assured and possessed of a baritone voice that sends chills up the spine!"

—NEW YORK WORLD-TELEGRAM AND SUN

★Introduced to New York as Licia Albanese's co-soloist with the Symphony of the Air in an operatic concert conducted by Jonel Perlea at Carnegie Hall, December 8, 1957.

"Gave an impressive account of of himself. An unusually fine voice."
—NEW YORK TIMES

"Proved to be both a splendidly warm musician and a telling vocalist."
—NEW YORK HERALD-TRIBUNE

★Chosen by Leopold Stokowski as baritone lead for a performance of Carl Orff's "Carmina Burana" at Carnegie Hall, February 2, 1958.

UNUSUAL CONCERT ATTRACTION

"Sweethearts of Song" and "Virtuosi of the Harmonica"

☆ . . . "Not only do they star as singers; Don reverts to his former role, that of headlining with a HARMONICA, and he plays some fascinating music on the harmonica. And then, the beautiful June Alden joins him, and they play another pleasing musical duet. . . . . This is a duo that gives a producer far more than he pays for: it is actually FIVE ATTRACTIONS IN ONE—two singing soloists, a singing duo, a harmonica-playing soloist and a harmonica duo. These artists I could hear again and again."

Few artists have conquered so successfully the many facets of the musical world as has the superb American contralto, Claramae Turner ,from Toscanini's "Ballo in Maschera" to the current movie version of "Carousel"; from Menotti's "The Medium", in which she created Madame Flora, to one of the sultriest of today's Carmens; from such operas as "Aida", "Il Trovatore", and "Samson et Dalilah" in such theatres as the Metropolitan and San Francisco Opera houses to the Ed Sullivan Show. Miss Turner has captivated audiences everywhere.

"Turner was a sensation. The audience cheered!"

S. Hurok presents

Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Nemenoff

A TRIBUTE FROM THE BOSTON GLOBE—

LUBOSHUTZ AND NEMENOFF SUPERLATIVE—This chronicler is in a desperate situation this morning. He has no new superlatives wherewith to describe the marvelous duo-piano playing of Pierre Luboshutz and Genia Nemenoff at the opening yesterday of the 30th season of Boston Morning Musicales. So we shall have to re-use some of the old superlatives, which justly have been lavished on these artists before.

It is remarkable that with all their delicate adjustment in technic—a commonplace in their performances—that Mr. and Mrs. Luboshutz never have become the least bit mechanical. Every time you hear them, the music-making is fresh as an Autumn morning and quite as full of vigor. It sings and sings, and sometimes you have the feeling of hearing a familiar work for the first time. That happened yesterday with the lovely Schumann Andante and Variations, and also with Rachmaninoff's splendid Suite, a work of near-symphonic proportions.

There was all the old and exceedingly beautiful attention to nuances and details, the sense of but one instrument so perfectly do they keep together; the long range of dynamic shadings and, above all, the care for grace of phrase and that superbly steady and vital rhythm.

In sum, Luboshutz and Nemenoff are among the finest of contemporary pianists, and as a duo they excel all others today. —CYRUS DURGIN, October 31, 1937

Mary
STRETCH
pianist

"Mary Stretch, pianist from Colorado Springs, made her New York debut at Times Hall last night before a large and appreciative audience. She played a program made up of the Bach-Liszt Prelude and Fugue in A Minor, the Cesar Franck Prelude Chorale and Fugue, Etudes and the G-minor Ballade of Chopin and numbers by Debussy, Rachmaninoff and Liapounow . . . the pianist was able to disclose her naturally musical perceptions. This was notably the case in the Franck work where Miss Stretch set forth a fine technique, power without noise, a noteworthy articulation of the voices and nice phrasing . . . Miss Stretch, using a velvet tone, achieved a good effect as she did also in the Ballade."—New York Times

"Displaying the fine musicianship which Newporters who had heard her before were expecting, Miss Stretch performed the Prelude, Chorale and Fugue by Franck with the vigor and assurance which characterized the greater part of her program, and tactfully complimented the more ethereal selections."
—Newport (R.I.) News

". . . the ensemble got into stride and gave an exemplary premiere performance of Julia Smith's delightfully perky and well-written 'Trio-Cornwall, 1955'. The work is dedicated to the Clio Concert Trio. Miss Stretch handled the glittering piano part and its spicy percussive rhythms with virtuosic aplomb. The performers were equally at home in the closing Ravel Trio. They gave the work a brilliant surface sheen and played it with an inner tension that kept the audience on its toes throughout."—Musical America

MILWAUKEE SENTINEL NOVEMBER 8, 1957

Teachers Go 'Wild' Over Jubilee Singers

Convening teachers Thursday night heard a two-part concert at the Auditorium, the disciplined music of the Jubilee Singers and the bubbly exuberance of the Belles of Indiana.

The Jubilee Singers, four men, a woman and a male pianist of concert caliber, drew insistent applause and appeals for more of their classicized spirituals and their faultlessly executed classics.

Their spirituals—"Live a-Humble," "Every Time I Feel the Spirit," "Oh, What a Beautiful City" and other favorites—were melodically lovely. If there was a fault it was an over-perfection, a loss of the naivete that is a part of all great folk music.

Even after intermission, the applause began again and would not be stopped until the audience was reminded it would hear the Jubilee Singers again on Friday morning.

International Listing of Orchestras, Opera Societies, and Managements

The following listing of International Orchestras, Opera Societies and Managements has been gathered from many sources. We wish to express our gratitude to the Musical Courier's foreign representatives, to the Cultural Offices of the various U. S. Information Offices and Embassies abroad and to the various Cultural Attaches of Foreign Embassies who have aided us in this comprehensive compilation. Unfortunately information from Czechoslovakia, Brazil and a few other countries arrived too late to be included in this issue.
